

Fact Sheet

Molly Brown House Museum

The Molly Brown House Museum was designed and built in 1889 by William Lang in Denver's fashionable Capitol Hill neighborhood. Margaret and J.J. Brown purchased the home in 1894 after making their fortune in gold mining. It was in Margaret "Molly" Brown's possession until her death in 1932. From 1932 until the late 1960s, the house saw many owners and occupants.

In 1970 Historic Denver, Inc. was organized to save the home from potential destruction. Historic Denver, Inc. purchased the Molly Brown House and opened it as a Museum. Aided by historic photographs taken during Mrs. Brown's occupancy, Historic Denver has authentically restored the home to the opulence of turn-of-the-century Denver and Mrs. Brown's lavish lifestyle.

OUR MISSION

The mission of Historic Denver's Molly Brown House Museum is to accurately portray the story of Margaret Tobin Brown within the context of her lifetime through ongoing research, artifact collection, preservation, and educational programming in order to inspire courage, conviction and pro-active change in her spirit.

ACTIVITIES & PROGRAMS

All Molly Brown House Museum programs are educational in nature. The Museum offers guided tours of the historic home and hosts special seasonal exhibits. The Museum also offers a variety of outreach programs, published in our education brochure. These programs include a Speakers Bureau for adult groups as well as traveling programs for schools, such as our carpetbag program, a women's history program, a Lego City program and a program on Denver's growth and establishment. The Museum also hosts special events throughout the year, including teas, luncheons, dinners and special tours, such as Victorian Horrors each October. All program information is listed at www.mollybrown.org.
